First Forecast of the Winter Rice Crop of Bengal, 1944-45.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1942-43, the area under winter rice in Bengal has represented some 20·8 per cent. of the total area under winter rice in India.)

Later, in August there was again a setback in the progress of transplantation and growth of the standing crop due to inadequate rainfall at places Ample rainfall in September has, however, been beneficial to both transplantation and growth The present outlook of the crop may be regarded as fair.

Acreage.—According to District Officers' estimates the total area under winter rice works out
